

HP BARCELONA

HP large format division in Barcelona Spain has openings for experienced or new graduates in Mechanical or Electrical Engineering to contribute as Writing System Engineers interested in pursuing a career in an international environment. You will define, invent, and lead WS development projects and processes in order to deliver on HP Quality needs and performance.

Utilize best practices and approaches, leverage leanings across new product developments, such that Writing System Robustness is delivered to each new product development / introduction, utilizing experience from other products and activities.

- Primary role is to maximize performance of printing systems within program boundary conditions (such as budget, resources, platform, schedule...).
- Take active part in the product architecture processes interacting with key stakeholders and other teams.
- Ensure supplies development (ink, media/substrate, printhead) meet product requirements. Working in co-development with the world-wide partner groups developing these assets.

A Bachelor's, Master's, or PhD. degree in an Engineering/Science related discipline is required. In addition fluent spoken and written English is also required.

If you are interested to apply for this position and/or want to receive full details about the job offer, please send your CV to Laura Navarro (laura.navarro1@hp.com).